

Path to Impromptu Violence

Grievance

Grievance occurs when the aggressor develops a grievance. The following types of behaviors indicate grievance:

- Expressing unreasonable expectations
- Making inflated demands
- Acting as if a debt of some kind is owed to him/her
- Demanding recognition for him/herself or his/her problem
- Showing unwillingness to be refused

Ideation

Ideation occurs when the aggressor gets the idea to use violence to resolve the grievance. The following types of behaviors indicate ideation:

- Showing agitation and anger
- Using foul, loud language
- Being argumentative

- Not taking 'No' for an answer
- Making threats or engaging in threatening or intimidating acts
- Using violence toward inanimate objects

Breach

Breach occurs when the aggressor gets physically close enough to the target to use violence. The following types of behaviors indicate breach:

- Refusing to obey instructions
- Moving toward the target
- Making an effort to overcome any barrier between the aggressor and the target
- Grabbing a nearby weapon of opportunity

Attack

Attack occurs when the aggressor uses violence against the target.
